What does NJEA fight for?

To help students be successful and ensure schools have the funding they need to maintain and improve their quality,

NJEA supports:

- Ensuring that contracts between school districts and our local associations are honored.
- Full-day preschool.
- Universal full-day kindergarten.
- Smaller class sizes, especially in earlier grades.
- Release time for parents to attend school functions.
- Healthy, safe and modern schools.
- Accountability standards for all public schools.
- Expansion of public school choice options.
- Human and civil rights, and social, racial and economic justice.
- Ensuring schools are not for profit.
- Ensuring public funds are used only for public schools.
- Equitable funding for economically stressed school districts.
- Adequate state funding for regular education programs.
- Aid for facilities and debt service.
- Funding for programs for at-risk and high-needs students.

During the pandemic, NJEA is fighting for:

- Resources to ensure educators and students can safely return to school
- Priority access to vaccines for educators
- Ensuring access to digital tools for students and staff
- Resources to address learning interruptions because of the pandemic

To ensure an outstanding education for every student while preserving a high-quality workforce,

NJEA supports:

- A fair evaluation system that relies on multiple measures of student progress.
- Expanded opportunities and rights for educational support professionals.
- Educator-driven professional development for certified and support staff.
- Two-year, state-funded mentoring for novice teachers.
- A defined benefit pension plan in retirement, as it is part of a school employee's compensation.
- Collective bargaining at the local level.
- Access to excellent health care for employees, with any premium-sharing subject to local bargaining.
- Local control over decisions that affect schools and communities.

Why does political action matter?

Almost every aspect of a school employee's job is determined by appointed or elected officials.

- Class sizes
- Wages
- School funding/resources for students
- Privatizing services
- Due process rights
- Pensions and health insurance
- How student test scores are used

If we want to exert influence over the issues that are important to us, our family, our profession and our community, we need to know:

- Who the appointed and elected decision makers are.
- What information they have BEFORE they make their decisions.

As NJEA members, our job is to be sure that policymakers at the local, state and federal levels hear directly from us on education issues. We know what students need to succeed. If we are absent from the process, we will allow important decisions about education to be determined by people who may have never set foot in a classroom or worked with a student.

This guide will provide you with information about these decision makers, your role in making sure the right people get to hold these positions, and what you can do to help them make the right decisions.

How are policy decisions made?

There are two main ways that policies affecting public schools and public school employees are made.

- The first is through the legislative process of developing and voting on bills that can then be approved or vetoed by the governor. If the bill is approved, it becomes law.
- The second way is through the State Board of Education. The New Jersey Department of Education proposes new code or revises existing regulations that the State Board of Education must approve for the change to go into effect.

Policies can also be created or changed by an executive order issued by the governor, a court decision or a federal law or regulation.

How a bill becomes a law

Idea developed

A legislator sponsors a bill, often at the suggestion of a constituent, interest group or public official.

The Office of Legislative Services, a nonpartisan agency of the Legislature, prepares the bill.

Bill introduced

During a legislative session, the bill's title is read aloud (first reading). The bill is released to the public.

Bill referred to committee

The Senate President or Assembly Speaker then usually refers the bill to a committee for review.

Committee action When scheduled by the chair, the committee considers the bill at a public meeting. The committee may leave the bill as is, make amendments or prepare a substitute bill.

Second reading

Bill drafted

A bill is considered at second reading when it is reported to the floor and its title is read aloud. Amendments can again be made. If not considered or reported, the bill remains in committee.

Third reading

When scheduled by the Senate President or Assembly Speaker, the bill is given a third reading and considered on the floor. To make additional amendments, the bill must be returned to second reading.

House vote

The bill passes when approved by a majority of the members and is sent to the other house. If a final vote is not taken after the third reading, it may be considered at another time or may be returned to a committee.

Second house The bill follows the same process in the second house. If amendments are made, the bill is returned to the first house for a vote. A bill receives final approval when it passes both houses in identical form.

Governor's action

After final passage, the bill is sent to the governor, who may sign it, conditionally veto it (returning it for changes) or veto it absolutely. The governor may veto single line items of appropriation bills. Bills passed in the last 10 days of a two-year session may be "pocket vetoed," which means ignored until the session expires, ensuring they do not become law.

Law enacted

A bill becomes law upon the governor's signature or after 45 days if no action is taken. Vetoed bills can become law by a two-thirds override vote of the Legislature. A law takes effect on the day specified in its text or, if unspecified, the next July 4.

🖈 How to find a bill online

To find a bill, go to njleg.state.nj.us and use the bill search tool on the right-hand side of the page. You can search by bill number (remember to use A for Assembly bills and S for Senate bills), sponsor or subject. You can read a bill's text, see its sponsors, find out where it is in the process and view any votes on the bill.

Who makes important policy decisions? How do these decision makers get their jobs? STATE GOVERNMENT

The governor, who is elected by a popular vote every four years, implements state laws and oversees the operation of the state executive branch.

The governor has the power to:

- Sign bills into law or veto them.
- Recommend laws and call the Legislature into special session.
- Issue executive orders, which can be used to trigger emergency powers during a natural disaster, create a study or advisory commission, or exercise administrative powers (e.g., begin a hiring freeze).
- Appoint judges as well as commissioners to lead executive agencies, such as the Department of Education and the Department of Labor.

The Legislature has the power to enact laws and propose amendments to the New Jersey Constitution. Members of the Legislature are elected.

There are two houses of the Legislature—the Senate and the General Assembly. Assembly members are elected every two years. Senators are elected every four years, except for the term immediately following the Census, which is a two-year term. The Senate has the power to approve gubernatorial appointments of judges and other officials like the Commissioner of Education and members of the State Board of Education.

There are 40 legislative districts in New Jersey. Each has one senator and two assemblypersons.

APPOINTED EDUCATION POLICYMAKERS

The Commissioner of Education oversees the New Jersey Department of Education and supervises all public schools in the state. The commissioner makes policy recommendations and develops rules and regulations for the State Board of Education to consider. The commissioner apportions state aid to local school districts, decides legal controversies arising under school law, and makes sure local school districts are operating in accordance with all legal and regulatory requirements.

The State Board of Education adopts administrative code. Administrative code is the set of rules that implements laws passed by the Legislature and signed by the governor, or implements policy changes and court decisions, such as the rules about teacher evaluation, special education and charter schools.

The Secretary of Higher Education is the primary advisor to the governor on higher education initiatives and incentive programs. The secretary reviews requests for state support from institutions and works to ensure that students have access to high-quality higher education, as well as administering grant programs that help students.

COUNTY GOVERNMENT

A Board of County Commissioners governs each of New Jersey's 21 counties. County Commissioners are elected. These county government officials provide funds for county vocational schools, special services districts, education commissions and community colleges.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Municipal governments make and implement policies within a town. Municipal policymaking bodies may be called by different names including council, committee, commission or board of trustees. People are elected to serve on these local governing bodies. They pass local ordinances, enact a budget and determine the local government share of taxes paid by members of their community.

Boards of Education make and implement policies, goals, and objectives for a school district. While boards of education do not run the day-to-day workings of a district, they do oversee the overall operation of the district and are responsible for developing and adopting a budget, approving a collective bargaining agreement, and providing adequate facilities and equipment. Most boards of education are elected in November, but some are appointed.

How are administrative code and regulations made?

The process of developing or changing regulations is called "rulemaking." New rulemaking can happen when there is new legislation, a change in agency/governmental policy, an executive order issued by the governor, a court decision, or a federal requirement.

Code/regulations usually go through the following steps:

- Discussions at two State Board meetings.
- A public testimony session following discussion.
- Publication of the proposed code in The New Jersey Register.
- Following publication, a public comment period, usually 60 days, and another public testimony session.
- Adoption of the code by the State Board, after which it is published in the Register with its effective date.

Want to see the action?

The Legislature usually meets on Mondays and Thursdays in Trenton. Check the schedule at njleg.state.nj.us. The State Board meets monthly at the Department of Education in Trenton. Check the agenda at https://www.nj.gov/education/sboe/meetings/schedule/ index.shtml

How does NJEA decide which candidates to support?

By supporting candidates for public offices who believe in public schools and public school employees, we can make sure that we are empowering the right people to make these decisions for us.

Regardless of whether the election is for federal, state or local offices, all decisions to endorse candidates are made solely by NJEA members.

In each case, candidates are given the opportunity to share their views by filling out a questionnaire and/or meeting with a local screening committee of NJEA members that reflects the diversity of our membership.

The local screening committee votes on whether to recommend candidates for endorsement.

NJEA PAC Operating Committee

In state elections, the recommendations of the local interview team are considered and voted upon by the NJEA PAC Operating Committee. This is a committee made up of 125 NJEA members currently serving our association as an NJEA officer, county president, or as a member of NJEA's Executive, Government Relations, or Congressional Contact committees. The NJEA Preservice president, as well as several New Jersey Retirees' Education Association (NJREA) representatives, also serve on the NJEA PAC Operating Committee.

In federal elections, the NJEA PAC Operating Committee uses the same process to recommend candidates for final approval to the NEA Fund for Children and Public Education.

★ Local and county associations can make endorsements in races within their jurisdiction if they get approval from their membership to initiate the process, create a screening committee that is inclusive of the entire association, and give all major party candidates the opportunity to be screened. Upon making an endorsement, presidents or LAT chairs can request assistance for endorsed candidates through the web apps tool on njea.org.

How can you influence elected and appointed officials?

Join your LAT

Become a member of your local Legislative Action Team (LAT). LATs are a network of NJEA members at the county and local levels who communicate legislative and political information to decision makers as well as to their fellow NJEA members. To attend an LAT, contact the county association. Find their information at actioncenter.njea.org/lat

Support NJEA PAC

Members can support NJEA PAC in three ways:

- Become an NJEA PAC Member.
- Support NJEA PAC-endorsed candidates at the polls.
- Volunteer to support pro-education candidates running for office.

Stay informed

- Connect through text messaging. To receive text messages from NJEA on hot topics and issues that matter to you, text UNITY to 738674 on your mobile phone. Have an issue that you're passionate about? After you opt in, text one of our keywords such as PENSION, ESP, TESTING, HIGHER ED or CHANGE (for our political campaigns) to 738674 to receive specialized messages on these important topics.

BECOME A PAC MEMBER TODAY!

NJEA PAC is your voice for public policy ADVOCACY!

From the day you start working to the day you retire, and even beyond, NJEA members benefit from the advocacy NJEA PAC provides every single day. Whether it's your daily working conditions, your salary and benefits, the curriculum you teach, the security of your pension, or due process rights for ESP members, NJEA PAC works for you to protect and expand your rights.

Like it or not, public officials like the Governor and state legislators all the way down to your local school board members make decisions that affect your professional life, regardless of your job title. Some are elected, and some are appointed by those that are elected, but they all have the power to impact your job.

NJEA PAC is our collective voice that we use to advocate for public policy that strengthens public education. If you're not a member, you're benefitting from the voice of thousands of your fellow educators while remaining silent yourself. Each member sets their own PAC membership level, with a minimum of $1.00 per month. It may not seem like much, but that's the power of unity. Your PAC member dues come out along with your NJEA dues; all you need to do is sign up. When we all pitch in together, we win, so join NJEA PAC today.

Benefits of PAC Membership

- ✓ Higher salaries
- ✓ Affordable healthcare
- ✓ More school funding
- Educator voice in school curriculum
- Improved working conditions
- A secure pension in retirement

But wait, there's more!

- NJEA PAC member lapel pin
- ✓ NJEA PAC digital newsletter subscription
- ✓ Special badge insignia at NJEA conferences
- Access to special PAC member-only events

Contact your lawmakers about pending legislation

Tips for contacting your lawmakers

Writing a letter or email: the most effective letters and emails are individually written and personalized rather than form letters simply signed and sent. However, it is critical that you double-check your spelling and punctuation. As educators, you are held to a higher standard.

- Address your letter to "The Honorable _____." If you want a response, be sure to include your return address.
- In the salutation of your letter, refer to the individual as Governor, Lt. Governor, Senator, Assemblyman/Assemblywoman, or Representative.
- Be sure to mention your full name, address and position in the public schools. Identify yourself as either a resident of, or an employee who works in the legislator's district, or as a member of an organization interested in the legislation.
- If you are writing in regard to a specific bill, identify it by number and title in your letter. State your position (support, oppose, wish to amend). Please remember to THANK the lawmaker for considering your view.
- Limit your letter to a single subject or piece of legislation – and only one page.

Making a phone call: identify yourself

(name, address, your school and position).

- You do not need to speak directly with the lawmaker. Speaking with his or her legislative aide is a very effective way of getting your point across. Always ask for the name and position of the person to whom you are speaking.
- If you are calling about a specific bill, be sure to use the proper name and number. Be sure to ask for the legislator's position.
- Remember to listen as well as speak and offer to send additional information supporting your opinion, if appropriate.
- THANK the person for speaking with you.

You can also use Facebook or Twitter to communicate directly with legislators.

See Page 15 for the district index followed by lawmakers and their contact information.

Tips for contacting the State Board

Writing a letter: the most effective letters are individually written or typed rather than form letters you simply sign. However, it is critical that you double-check your spelling and punctuation. As educators, you are held to a higher standard.

- Be sure to mention your full name, address and position in the public schools. Remember that the State Board votes on regulations (education code), not legislation. Cite the specific item of code that you wish to address (e.g. Educator Effectiveness or Special Education).
- Limit your letter to a single subject or item of code and only one page.
- Address the envelope to the State Board of Education and mail it to:
 NJDOE, State Board Office, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625-0500.

Speaking at a public testimony session: generally, public testimony sessions are held the first Wednesday of every month at 2 p.m. in Trenton.

- Dates, topics for testimony, and which sessions are "open topic" (held three times a year) are published in advance at state.nj.us/education/sboe. Click "meetings" found on the left side of the page.
- To speak during a public testimony session, you must register in advance online or call the State Board office at 609-376-3500.

Submitting written testimony: if you are unable to attend a public session, you may submit written comments on the topic to be considered by the State Board. Mail it to:

NJDOE, State Board Office, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625-0500

NJEA's Government Relations (GR) Division coordinates NJEA's legislative activities and political campaigns and is responsible for monitoring the functions of government departments, bureaus and agencies. The GR Division analyzes and reports on legislation, testifies before legislative committees and executive agencies, coordinates state and federal lobbying efforts, provides legislative and political action training to members, and organizes members for legislative and political action. GR staff assists counties in conducting Legislative Action Team (LAT) meetings and works to help NJEA members develop strong and positive relationships with elected officials at all levels of government. Division staff also coordinate NJEA's Political Leadership Academy program, which provides members with the tools and information they need to run for political office.
